BOMBAY GAZETTE EXTRA.

TUESDAY EVENING, 16TH JUNE, 1840.

We hasten to lay before our readers a reprint of the Delhi Gazette Extraordinary of the 6th of June, which gives an animadverted account of an affair with the rebellious Ghilzies.

It also contains a version of the unfortunate transaction in which poor Clarke perished, only 7 of his regular Seapoys survived out of 50. This entirely confirms the view of the matter taken by us in a previous issue.

(From the Delhi Gazette Extra, June 6.)

In our last issue we adverted to a Force about to proceed against the rebellious Ghilzees, and last Evening's Dak has put us in possession of some particulars, which we think our Readers will deem of sufficient importance to appear in an Extra. The Detachment sent out against the Rebels, consisted of a portion of the Shah's Troops, under the command of Captain Anderson of the Artillery, as follows :—An Infantry Corps under Capt. Woodburn, a detail of Infantry under Captain Codrington, and four 6 Pounders—Captains Taylor and Walker, with a few of the Regular Horse, and a portion of Captain Anderson's Horse. Whilst this Force was on its march, it was attacked near Khelat-i-Ghilzie by about 3,000 Ghilzie Horsemen, who, in really gallant style, charged the force in front and flanks. The Infantry, however, steadily repulsed them, and were aided by Captain Anders[redacted] peppered their ranks, without inte[redacted]th grape. The Irregulars and An[redacted]orse then attacked them, and the Rebels [redacted]ted, leaving between 200 and 300 of their numbers killed. We have received more than one account, and all agree that the Ghilzies behaved well, numbers of them rushing on to the bayonets of our troops.

We regret to say that, the loss on our side amounts to 10, and that we have about 50 wounded, we shall look most anxiously for further particulars.

Rebellion is the order of the day, between Candahar and Guznee; but it is hoped that the strong force ordered from Cabul, will soon set matters to rights; it is said that a Detachment of the 2nd N. I. under Colonel Wallace—a squadron of the 2nd Cavalry, half of Abbot's Battery, with his 2 Mortars, are to join General Nott. We have late news from Herat, all is quiet in that quarter.

It is said that Sir W. McNaghten has applied for a Brigade of European Infantry, in addition to the troops now at Cabool.

A letter from Ferozepore gives us intelligence of the unfortunate result of an expedition against some Beloochees under the command of Lieutenant Clerk, the Second in Command of the Scinde Horse, who, we regret to say, perished, and all but seven of his 50 men were cut up; it appears he pushed his success too far, for (in the first part of his dour) he had rea d the Beloochees a salutary lesson—until he was left without ammunition, when the Beloochees, seeing this, came down in numbers and soon cleared their way. The Beloochees, who fought like maddened devils, had about 300 killed and wounded.

A later letter states that the Ghilzies had more than 300 killed, and that the Locals were on the track of the fugitives. We have no time to comment upon the events, merely placing them before our readers as we have received them, but every credit may be placed in the particulars. Re-inforcement must become the duty of Government.

Our reports from Affghanistan are very unsatisfactory, and such as we can hardly give credence to.

Captain Abbott's departure for St. Petersburg is confirmed on all sides, as well as an alliance having existed between Russia and Bhokara for years past. It is now said that the former have connived at French Officers entering the service of Persia, who have carried with them an immense stand of arms, for the use of the Shah's Army.

It is much to be feared that the Russians are establishing line of posts between Orenburgh and Chiva, and we perceive that our report of the advance of a body of Russians from the Caspian Sea, is corroborated.
